

that I should be pleased to sell at the price offered, providing in so doing we should not injure our rights in controlling the water. We have understood (by Mr. Jessell) that the former company's object in purchasing the old Fulling-mill privilege was, that was the only privilege which had any right to go to the upper pond for water. - The Dea is willing we should retain all such rights -

I should be much pleased if you would come down I think that there could be an arrangement made which would be satisfactory to all. Mr. B seems to talk as though he had a right to do the company's business, & says that if the goods are sent to Boston, he will do it for a fair price & that he is willing if any one will do it less than he ~~will~~, that should do it -

I should not think that it was best to stop the mill but am willing to sell if a purchaser can be found.

Respectfully Yours

J. E. Esquire