

the grand-daughter, We next went to see Mrs Harmon found her well, we then went back to Mr Ballards and took dinner, at 3 o'clock we all went up to to the other sister Mrs Sands she is well tell Rodney that she is as fat and tender looking as ever her husband looks very old and feeble indeed, one of her married daughters was there on a visit her health is not good she has a cold and coughs and when she does cough it sounds like she was in a consumption they fear she is, We took supper there and had one of the best of visits I do not know when I have enjoyed my visit so well, yesterday we visited the grave-yard where Grand-pa and ma Milliken and also Aunt Polly are buried, Aunt Susan has one child buried there also, there is no grave-stones or any thing else to mark the place, Susan and Wm had to search some time to be sure which was there graves, it does seem to ball that some one does not attend to it, tell Uncle Ben that the folks here want he should come and spend next Winter with them Aunt Susan sends her love to all the friends